Rising Museum Boards Setting the Standard

Rising Museum Boards set the industry standard that others attempt to meet. It not only meets, but exceeds the standards set by the Library of Congress!

Why is Rising this good?

Cuts beautifully – no other board cuts as clean to produce an ultra-sharp bevel cut. This is because of the high-quality manufacturing process and how Rising processes the cotton fibers.

Cleanest papers – the cleansing system at Rising is the purest, eliminating all impurities from the cotton to produce an absolutely speck-free paper surface. This may seem insignificant, but the slightest speck on framed artwork under glass will appear as dirt. Rising Museum Board is guaranteed to be 100% speck free with absolute even tone across the board.

Water Quality is the purest well water from the deepest sources, one of the key ingredients to the speck-free quality mentioned above. Utilizing artesian well water from a limestone water table 800 feet below the earth's surface, the Rising Paper Mill manufactures incredibly pure museum quality paper products without the use of alum, a settling agent for impurities and silt. Therefore there are no contaminants. This separates Rising from the rest.

Finest Organic Dyes and Pigments are used guaranteeing the colors will not bleed, rub off, fade or scuff. Even Black Rising board meets these criteria.

Sized for French Matting, used by artists as a printing and drawing board and is also extremely popular in the greeting card and stationery market for crisp letterpressing.

Superior natural archival quality and acid-free without chemical additives for a PH of 7.2.

Focused Color Palette of whites and off-whites classically allows art to speak for itself.
