LEGION PAPER ACQUIRES MOAB

Merging of brands, resources, distribution, and creative talent to create unprecedented level of value

NOVEMBER 2, 2006 – Legion Paper, the largest supplier of fine art paper in North America, is pleased to announce today that it has acquired Moab Paper Company, the leading manufacturer of archival digital papers, storage and display products. The acquisition will form the Moab by Legion Paper to create the most dynamic imaging company dedicated to the art of the digital fine print.

“Combining the worldwide fine art paper expertise of Legion Paper with the digital imaging product and manufacturing experience of Moab Paper Company is a natural fit,” says Moab Paper Company president, Gregory Schern. Schern will head the new division with distribution moving to Legion Paper’s specialized warehouses in California and New Jersey. “The partnership enables Moab by Legion Paper to combine the strengths of both companies to offer the widest selection of high quality imaging solutions to professionals and photo enthusiasts alike,” said Schern.

Legion Paper’s COO, Joshua Levine, is excited about the merger and the benefits it will provide to our customers. “With the completion of this acquisition, Legion Paper continues to solidify its position as the leader in the sales and distribution of the world’s finest papers. The new Moab by Legion Paper division draws on the heritage and innovation of both companies enabling us to develop new products for the evolving needs of today’s demanding professionals,” said Levine.

The transaction will be completed by end of 2006.
